There seems to be a sort of epidemic of resignations in the air. The Mayor today confirmed the report that Commissioner Andrews tendered his resignation to him two or three weeks ago.

Mr. Gilroy did not wish to make any change so late in his term, however, and he induced Mr. Andrews to keep on until Col. Strong should be ready to appoint his successor.

and radical changes in the personnel of the office staff are looked for on any day.

There is a similar air of dire expectancy in the office of the Commissioners of Accounts, in the Stewart Rullding, James S. Lehmaier and Seth S. Terry, the new Commissioners, take office to-morrow. As their chief business for some time will be to examine the accounts of Tammany departments, they will probably get rid of some of the Tammany accountants. Charles G. F. Wahle, one of the retiring Commissioners, will devote himself to law practice. His colleague, Edward Diven, has not announced his intentions.

George E. Waring, jr., the new Commissioner of Street Cleaning, will not assume office until Jan. 15, when the resignation of William S. Andrews takes effect.

Many Ways in Which Peatherlings Get Into Trouble. A writer in Our Animal Priends describes some of the accidents by which birds are killed. He says:

A strange accident is recorded in the story of a fish-hawk, which sunk its talons so deep into a huge fish that it could not withdraw them, and, despite its struggles, was drawn beneath the water and drowned. Indeed, the misadventures that befall birds are not infre-

WHY SO-CALLED.

Derivation of Many Names o Plants and Flowers. Nicotine comes from John Nicot, who introduced tobacco into France in 1560. An old name for tobacco was petum, or petum. Hence the name Petumia for that flowering plant which is a species of tobacco.

petun. Hence the name Petunia for that flowering plant which is a species of tobacco.

The beautiful camelia is so called from the Jesuit priest Kamel, who first brought it to Europe from Japan. The lovely Autumn flower, the dahlia, is a native of Mexico, but was first cultivated in Europe by Dahl, a Swedish botanist. Lady Holland introduced it in England by having it cultivated in the French garden of the celebrated Holland House, Kensington. The damask rose was brought to England by Dr. Linaker, physican to King Henry VIII.

Mignonette, which signifies "little darling." Is a native of Northern Africa, and was first cultivated in Europe in the royal gardens of Paris. In 1752 Lord Bateman introduced it in England.

The story of the weeping willow is an interesting one. The tree is a native of Spain. In the reign of George II. of England, Lady Suffolk received a package from Spain enwrapped in twigs of willow. Poep, the poet, was present when it was opened. Noticing that the willow twigs were still alive Pope took some of them to plant at Twickenham. This is the origin of the beautiful weeping willows that to this day ornament the borders of the Thames at Twickenham.

Americans, as a rule, do not take to pipes as much as Englishmen, says the Pittsburg Dispatch, for the reason that very few of them know how to smoke. They carry their impulsive, energetic natures into their pipe-smoking and put away as if their existence depended on finishing the pipe in a given time.

I have seen an American and an Englishman sit down for a quiet smoke and chat and the American would fill his pipe twice to the Englishman's once. A pipe, to be enjoyed, should be smoked slowly, but the art in smoking so is to keep the pipe lighted. This is a knack which seems to be well understood only on the other side of the pond.

The average American pipe-smoker uses match after match with every pipeful. People come in to select to-bacco and the one thing they seek for it. Is the constant cry—is a "tobacco that will not bite the tongue." There is no tobacco that will come up to this requirement if smoked as pipe-smokar usually do. It is not the tohacco, but the heat from the fire in the bowl the burns the tongue.
